

Teacher of Modern Foreign Languages

Modern Foreign Languages are currently taught to all students in Key Stage 3. Most students study either French or Spanish and have the option of continuing to study either or both at Key Stage 4. French and Spanish are offered as optional subjects in Key Stage 4 leading to AQA GCSE. Spanish or French is taught to AS and A2 level. There is a yearly trip to France which takes place in the summer term and we have are hoping to develop further trips abroad in the future.

The Successful Candidate

The post is suitable for an NQT or a current practitioner who is able to teach French and Spanish to GCSE.

Your professional practice will be informed by a good understanding of developments in teaching and learning. You will want to introduce curriculum innovation into your classroom work.

You will join a team of colleagues who are well respected and experienced professionals. The departmental ethos encourages the sharing of ideas and expertise, with the aim of promoting the highest standards of teaching and learning.

You will feel comfortable working in an open, informal and mutually supportive departmental environment, and be prepared to commit fully to the department's desire to seek continuous improvement. You will be happy to embrace a range of teaching methods and new technologies to inspire our learners and help them to see the value of learning a foreign language.

Jane Sweeney
Head of MFL
January 2013